World's Greatest Indian Show

San Diego, California

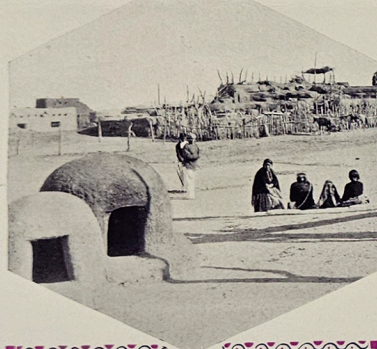

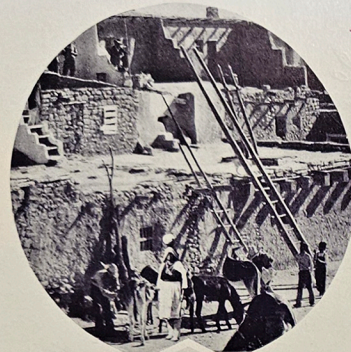

May 29 to Nov. 11, 1935

Colorful! Beautiful!

A Village replete with stories and action of the red man,—his flashing tomahawk, whizzing arrows or pipe of peace. Here for the first time during any World Exposition, will be presented dances as seen by Columbus and Cortez—The Horse Tail and Happy Trail, the marriage altar, burial grounds, the Porcupine Dance and a reproduction of the world famous Hopi Snake Dance and Sun Dance, will be a part of our program.

Throbbing! Thrilling!

A bewildering maze of weird, strange and exciting dances—a colorful, fascinating scene, with a background steeped in mystery. Authentic reproductions of Indian Villages on a five-acre area, where visitors may see symbolic tepees, lit by campfires in a sunset glow—basket weavers, silver-smiths, rug makers, sacred shrines; warriors making war clubs, tomahawks or drums. Life, legend and lore by full-blooded Indians in native chants and dances.

CHARM! RICH! RARE!

Beautiful maidens with dreamy eyes—attired in enchanting costumes of fringe, beads and native jewels. Fearless warriors supreme in poise and dignity; legend and lore told in song and dance to the drone of buckskin drums by various Indians from over 30 tribes in their daily routine—as their forefathers lived before the coming of the white man—an atmosphere so colorful and beautiful it will fascinate the eye and captivate the fancy.

167 DAYS AND NIGHTS

To see buildings of architectural splendor; and attractions designed to educate as well as entertain. One hundred and sixty-seven nights and days of matchless beauty in an enchanting climate of sunshine, peace and plenty. A natural wonder scenic setting—an achievement to which artists from many nations have been drawn as if by magic. A story of the past, present and future. Thrills—recreation—color—romance and mystery.
